The intake revenue scorecard

Intake isn't a cost center. It decides how much of your ad spend becomes signed cases. Pull these numbers for one week. If you can't get one, write down who should own it: that's your first fix.

NUMBER	WHERE IT HIDES	YOUR NUMBER	OWNER
Inbound calls per hour By hour of day, by day of week	Phone system report
Answer rate Answered ÷ inbound	Phone system
Abandoned calls Caller hung up before reaching a person	Phone system / ACD
Hang-ups during the welcome message And the average second they drop	IVR report
Average speed of answer By queue and by agent	Phone system
After-hours calls How many, and who answered	Phone system / answering service
Missed-call callback time Minutes from missed call to first callback	Phone system + CRM
Automatic CRM caller lookup? Does the system match the number before "hello"?	Phone ↔ CRM integration	Yes / No
Qualified → consult booked	CRM
Consults kept	CRM / calendar
Inquiry → signed rate By source	CRM + case management
Qualification consistency Same questions, same criteria, every specialist?	Call recordings / QA	Yes / No

Numbers don't lie. They show exactly where the bottleneck is, and exactly what to fix.
